

---

Dish Network Google TV Integration

Tuesday, 16 November 2010

Just when the Google TV received a setback from Fox.com recently, it seems that Google TV is back on track, whereby Dish Network has recently disclosed that they will be pushing for an integration with Google TV, via their existing hardware.

Generally, the integration will cost consumers $4, and when successfully integrated, it will allow existing consumers to tap into the Google TV network. And most surprisingly, Dish is currently one of the sole TV provider that allows Google TV to search through, while other TV networks are finding Google TV services to be somewhat of a serious threat to their conventional methods of entertainment distribution.

Surely, if you want to integrate your Dish service with Google TV, perhaps it s time you should ring Dish up and ask for directions on how to upgrade.